Sikh websites without descriptions

There is such a large volume of sites that I have discovered that I have not been able to go through the majority of them by now. Furthermore, many of the ones I have personally combed through myself are not notable. Nevertheless, I leave their links here for posterity, in case anyone else is interested in looking into them.

Note: Many of these websites have not really been checked. Good chance that most of the ones without notes in brackets are no longer extant; so once again, I ask that you please exercise caution when visiting them as you never know if they are hijacked or not (I'm talking about using NoScript at least). I should also warn you that a few 1990s Sikh websites will auto-download certain files.
